Dear Sir Tim,

On the occasion of your inventing the World Wide Web, I send you my thanks, admiration, and undying gratitude.

Not only did your invention change the world in amazing ways too many to count, it helped bring together my lovely wife, Joanna Roguska, and I. I had been single for 14 years, and she was 4600 miles away in Warsaw, Poland, so I know it was a miracle that was not otherwise possible. The story if you choose to read it is here:
<http://billslater.com/internetlovestory.htm>. Everyday, I give thanks for Joanna and for your WWW invention.

As president of the Chicago Chapter of the Internet Society, I invite you visit our ISOC-Chicago Chapter sometime, and of course dine with us in Chicago afterwards.

We wish you continued success with your present and future projects, especially things like the semantic web.

May God bless you, your family, your friends, CERN, and the World Wide Web Consortium.

Highest regards,

Bill
